Targeted Audience: Workshop will be geared for educators of grades 2 – 5. However, everyone is welcome.

Registration fee: $25.00 per person for curricula, resource materials, dinner and lunch and access to the aquarium (A $100 value).

Deadline for registration is February 8, 2010. Register early, as there are only 20 spaces. Directions and program details mailed out upon registration.

Georgia's Native Waters: Designed to be more than conservation education, it is an interdisciplinary set of environmental education lessons and over 55 activities for kindergarten through twelfth grade students that inspire them to apply classroom knowledge to real-world situations through the investigation of many of Georgia's amazing aquatic ecosystems, while at the same time connecting how community values can impact these areas.

Project WET facilitates and promotes awareness, appreciation, knowledge, and stewardship of water resources through the dissemination of classroom-ready teaching aids. The curriculum guide contains over 90 broad-based water resource activities that were developed and field-tested by over 600 educators and resource managers working with 34,000 students nationwide.
